

WHYY

I hope by this time you have seen your name up in lights across the street. The sequence keeps repeating, about 10 names at a time.

WHYY, is the public radio and television station here in Philadelphia.

Turns out WHYY is one of my clients and they graciously agreed to acknowledge our presence here tonight by listing our names on the streaming ticker tape display across the front of their building. It started at 7pm and should run for a couple of hours.

If you would care to say thank you, and I certainly hope you will, their membership literature is on the registration desk.

Wherever you live, please support your local PBS and NPR stations by becoming a member.